House Moving Cautiously On Reform Bill

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan House, where Democrats hold a faint four-vote majority, has only begun to consider Gov. William G. Milliken's education reform package.

Passage Foreseen

But already there are signs of disgruntlement among the 53 Republicans in the lower chamber.

Even as Republicans on the Senate Education Committee were voting Tuesday to table four key bills in Milliken's package, the House Education Committee was telling administration aides where the bones of contention are buried in the $1.035 billion school aid appropriation which Milliken asked be passed this fall.

A ranking Democratic leader earlier predicted the school aid bill for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 would be among the easier bills to pass.

But Democrats and Republicans alike—together with education lobbyists and interested citizens turned a routine Tuesday Education Committee meeting virtually into a public hearing as they complained about hardships the intended leveling would have on specific districts.

Not Acceptable

Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, predicted "most legislators will agree we cannot accept $535 per child at first look. We've got to clarify that section."

Milliken's bill, totaling some $1.035 billion in state aid for the next fiscal year, would allocate $535 to every child in the state, after first deducting the amount a local district could raise through a 16-mill property tax. Spencer suggested increasing basic aid beyond the $664 million already proposed under Milliken's formula. That is $70 million more than the Legislature passed for the current school year.

Against Constitution?

Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, questioned whether the Constitution permits the Legislature to act on the bill at all this year.

The 1968 Constitution stipulates no appropriations may be passed until the governor presents a January budget message detailing expected revenue and proposed expenses.

"I really don't understand how you can come to us and ask for an appropriation now," Montgomery said.

David Dykhouse, Milliken's chief legal adviser, said the school aid bill is "not technically a budget bill because the appropriating could be done later."

Montgomery's Father, Rep. George Montgomery, also a Detroit Democrat, said the Milliken aid bill would bring "shrieks of anguish from districts willing to finance high-quality education now."

Milliken's bill, calling for a single, statewide basic allowance, would force some districts to cut their programs, said the senior Montgomery. "I don't see why they should be deprived this way—or why their legislators should ask them to."

Suggest Nixon Take Missile Ban Initiative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers was invited before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today in a session likely to influence considerably the congressional drive for a resolution urging U.S. initiatives to halt the testing of multiwarhead missiles.

A number of committee members are among 42 sponsors of the resolution introduced by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass. It calls on President Nixon to take the lead in pressing for a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on tests of the Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicles—MIRV.

Sources indicated Rogers will be pressed closely on administration objections to further action on the resolution, including a round of public hearings.

"The secretary would have to present a pretty compelling case" to halt the move for hearings, one source said.

Rogers said over the weekend a halt in MIRV production will be one of the subjects to be considered at U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks scheduled to start with preliminary discussions Nov. 17 in Helsinki.

But the secretary cautioned that "the start of the talks themselves does not mean success . . ."

Meanwhile, a top Senate Republican quoted Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign policy adviser, is being opposed to any congressional moves that might have the effect of limiting U.S. options at the arms limitation talks.

City Hall Tower Given 'New Life'

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—City Hall's tower has gained a temporary respite from demolition as Grand Rapids officials prepare to go to court today for a ruling on whether they can legally save it.

A 4-3 decision of the city commission approved a motion to seek declaratory judgment Tuesday. However, the action may have raised still more questions in the months-long controversy.

Legality Questioned

The city wants to learn whether preserving the 120-foot high tower would violate its legal obligations to Union Bank, the other tenants of the city's urban renewal area, and the federal government which has provided part of the funds for the project.

The bank has purchased the land on which the 81-year-old sandstone city hall stands but the tower is 13 feet beyond the bank's property line. It stands on land the city has designated as a street right-of-way.

Bank A Defendant

City Attorney Steven L. Dykema said Union Bank will be one of the defendants when he files the suit and there may be others.

Edward M. Smith, attorney for the Kent County Council for Historic Preservation, which prevailed upon the commissioners to seek the judgement even as the old City Hall was under demolition, said the request attempts to have the "issue resolved before the damage is done."

"Moving Force"

The moving force in group trying to save the tower is a 34-year-old former nightclub singer and mother of four, Mrs. John R. Stiles. She has used such tactics as chaining herself to a wrecking ball and staging a parade led by a nightgown clad "Princess of the Tower" in an effort first to save the entire City Hall and now to save the tower.

"I have finally discovered what the establishment is," Mrs. Stiles said. She said city government is "like a brick wall. It's a tight thing to even open a chink in it."

The laws provide that requests for declaratory judgment need not be placed on the court calendar and Dykema said he will request a quick ruling.

"We would hope to get a ruling in the next few weeks but it's the type of thing that could drag on for years," Dykema warned.

Intervention Sought

The council would not be a party to the suit originally but Smith said he hopes they will be granted permission to intervene.

Should the courts declare the tower may be saved, there are still unanswered questions about its future.

Four Education Bills Out Of Committee

'Backroom Politicking' Charges Being Hurled

LANSING (AP) — The Senate today moved a major portion of Gov. William Milliken's education reform program to the Appropriations Committee for study amid accusations of "backroom politicking."

Among those measures sent to the Appropriations Committee was the billion-dollar school aid measure that puts up $25 million for parochiaid.

The move came after a hastily called Senate Education Committee meeting Tuesday, during which four bills — including the school aid measure — were reported from committee without recommendation for passage.

That means the bills were tabled until backers mustered 20 votes in the 38-member chamber to order debate. Two of those bills came off the table today with a bare 20-vote tally. The other two remained on the table.

Two Republicans and one Democratic committee member voted out the bills. A Democrat who condemned what he called a "secret" meeting and one other Republican were not present.

"Democrats took a position that they were not willing to provide votes for anything until all the package was on the floor," explained Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis.

Now, he said, Democrats can't say the bills are bottled up."

"We wanted expeditious action—not reckless action," retorted Minority Leader Sander Levin, D-Berkley. He said he was "unclear" as to why the Democrat, Sen. James Gray of Warren, approved the committee action. Gray indicated he believed the package could be labelled a "Republican package" if discussed and passed. The GOP has 20 Senate votes, the Democrats 18.

Study Needed

Levin called it "insane" to report out the bills before the committee studied them.

Milliken said he expected his proposal to eliminate property tax credits on income tax to be reported from the Senate Taxation Committee. Also pending is a suggested constitutional amendment proposing a statewide property tax.

Milliken maintained that he had not engineered the strategy followed by the Republican-dominated Education Committee in reporting out the bills.

Lockwood said Republicans had been told Democrats would not vote for anything—including a proposed constitutional amendment that calls for a two-thirds vote—until the entire package was before the Senate. Lockwood said the caucus had not, however, instructed Education Chairman Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, on how to proceed.

Stamm insisted today his committee's action was "not awkward."

"I don't think it's awkward when you have a feeling the entire membership wants to look at all the bills on the table.

"There's nothing else on the calendar," Stamm said, "and it was just a matter I had indicated we'd finish by the middle of the week.

"If you talk with both caucus chairmen I think you'll learn they both wanted to do it that way. I see nothing awkward with that."

Stamm announced the meeting immediately after both Republicans and Democrats caucused late Tuesday afternoon. He and Sens. Robert Vanderlaan, R-Grand Rapids, and Gray voted out the bills.

Sen. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, reportedly was not in Lansing.

The fifth committee member, Democrat Coleman Young of Detroit, contended the meeting was held "in secret. I didn't even know where it was," he said. "They moved the negotiations into the Governor's backroom."

GE Executives Sticking With Original Offer

By The Associated Press

The AFL — CIO Executive Council meets in Washington today to rally support for a 13-union strike against General Electric Co., now in its third day.

Meanwhile, the GE management told a stockholders' meeting in Minneapolis, Minn., Tuesday that it would not increase its present offer to meet "super-inflationary" union demands.

George Meany, AFL — CIO president, called today's session to make good his pledge to back the strike with all of organized labor.

There was picket line violence in five cities Tuesday. But GE, the nation's fourth largest industrial corporation, said all 280 plants in 33 states were open.

Production was halted at an undetermined number of plants, as about 75 per cent of the blue-collar workers stayed out. The unions, which represent 147,000 GE workers, said 132,000 were on strike. The company said 125,000 men were out.

GE has 310,000 employes in the United States and 90,000 overseas.

The picket line disturbances were in Schenectady, N.Y.; Bloomington, Ind.; Lynn and Pittsfield, Mass., and Collingdale, Pa.

Police beat back nonunion workers attempting to cross the picket line in Schenectady, bloodying three, in what they said was an attempt to avert mass violence.

The strike is led by the International Union of Electrical Workers, AFL—CIO, and the independent United Electrical Workers.

The unions have demanded a 90 cents an hour increase over 30 months: 35 cents the first year, 30 the second and 25 in the last six months, plus up to 50 cents extra for special skills.

GE has offered 20 cents an hour in the first year of a three-year pact, with wage reopeners in subsequent years and premiums of 5 to 25 cents for skills. The average hourly pay is currently $3.25.

Insurance Rates To Be Raised In Western States

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's largest auto insurance carrier will raise rates for the second time this year on Dec. 1 The increase will average 10.1 per cent.

Announcing the boost for its 1,385,000 California policy holders, State Farm Mutual said Tuesday its losses in the first six months of this year have shown "a sudden and severe worsening" and totaled $3.3 million.

OMBE Official Gets GOP Axe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has fired the disgruntled head of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise after he publicly urged black businessmen to pressure the government for increased aid to minorities.

Sources said Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans personally ordered Thomas F. Roeser fired Tuesday, not only for his stand on minority business aid but because he openly criticized the way the OMBE was being promoted.

However, the 41-year-old Roeser, a white, former public relations man, was kept on as assistant to Stans with new responsibility "for long-range program planning and policy development."

Abraham S. Venable, a 39-year-old Negro career government employe with experience in equal opportunity programs, was named to Roeser's old position.

Attorneys Set Up Witnesses In Collins' Case

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The names of 10 persons have been filed in court to help provide John Norman Collins with an alibi for last July 23, on the day he is accused of murdering the 18-year-old Eastern Michigan University coed.

Defense attorneys say they now have lined up 10 witnesses who can say they saw Collins between noon and 3 p.m. July 23, the period during which he is charged with picking up Karen Sue Beineman on his motorcycle and later murdering her.

Attorneys say that they can account for Collin's movements from noon to almost 3 p.m. by testimony from three girls, five motorcycle shop employes and two restaurant employes.

The names of these persons were listed in a document filed in Washtenaw County Circuit Court last week.

A pretrial witness has already testified she saw Collins pick up Miss Beineman about 12:30 p.m. in front of a downtown Ypsilanti wig shop. The autopsy on her body revealed the Grand Rapids girl was dead by 3 p.m

One of the 10, Sue Bonner, 22, told the Detroit Free Press she saw Collins talking with a girl other than Miss Beineman around 12:30 p.m. on July 23. "I've known him several years, he's a very nice guy."

Defense attorneys claim five persons at the J and J Cycle Shop in Ypsilanti saw Collins there between 1 and 3 p.m. One of them, John Lehto, said he thought Collins may have stayed at the shop as late as 3 p.m., according to the Free Press.

Defense statements assert John Elezi and Robert Mullins, who work at a drive-in restaurant about 1½ miles from the alleged scene of the murder, said they saw Collins between 2:30 and 3 p.m on July 23.

Collins is charged with committing the murder in the Ypsilanti home of his uncle, State Police Sgt. David Leik.

Miss Beineman was one of seven young women murdered in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in a two-year period. No one has been charged in the other six.

Volcano Erupts

MANILA (AP) — The Taal volcano spewed smoke, ashes and small fragments in a series of weak eruptions today, and the 2,000 inhabitants of the island around it were ordered to move to the mainland again.

The small volcanic island sits in a large crater lake 60 miles southwest of Manila. Most of the islanders farm the rich volcanic soil.

Taal erupted in 1965, killing 300 persons; a 1966 eruption caused no damage.

Tax Exemption Hike On Planning Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee is taking up tax relief for individuals after weeks of struggling with many complex tax reform provisions.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he would push at today's session for an increase in the personal exemption on the income tax from the present $600 to $1,000.

This would cost the treasury about $12 billion and probably would provide greater tax relief than the panel would be willing to grant.

The present $600 exemption has been in effect for 21 years. Gore and a number of other senators argue it is completely inadequate in view of the rise in living costs.

Opposed By GOP

However, the Nixon administration strongly opposes any increase in the exemption.

Gore said his plan would be to substitute a boost in the exemption for two features of the House-passed bill—a low income allowance designed to knock millions of poverty-level families off the tax rolls and a cut in income tax rates across the board for all individuals.

These two features would provide $7.2 billion of the $9.2 billion of tax relief in the House version of the bill.

Want Gap Narrowed

The House measure would grant $2.4 billion more in relief in addition to the $6.8 billion it gains through tax reform. A number of senators have contended their branch should try to narrow this gap, or at least not increase it.

But Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., has said he would not be surprised if the Senate boosts the tax relief.

Long's committee appears well on its way toward meeting its goal of completing work on the mammoth tax bill by its Friday deadline.

A substantial part of the House reform package has been retained, but the Senate committee has made many changes in it.

New Provision

The panel added a provision Tuesday which the Treasury said would correct a substantial abuse.

This would put close limits on amounts professional men, chiefly doctors, can put into tax-free pension contributions to corporate pension plans for their benefit.

But the committee softened another Nixon provision aimed at abuses by operators of [illegible] private foundations.

The House voted to require such foundations to get rid of all their [illegible] by 15 and pointed family [illegible].

The Senate Committee raised this to 30 per cent in the case of all existing foundations.

Saigon Rulers Release 88 VC

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government pardoned one of its leading Buddhist critics today and released 88 Viet Cong prisoners of war as part of its observance of South Vietnam's National Day Nov. 1

President Nguyen Van Thieu pardoned Thich Thien Minh, the dissident monk imprisoned last March on a charge of harboring draft dodgers and deserters. A spokesman said Thien Minh—thich is Vietnamese for the Buddhist title venerable—would be set free as soon as formalities were completed.

More than two thirds of the Viet Cong freed were women.

Virtually no public fanfare attended the release of the POWs at numerous locations across the country although it was one of the largest groups of prisoners, ever freed.

A government spokesman had announced Tuesday that 24 prisoners would be released for "humanitarian reasons." But there was no explanation why the government did not make the additional releases the occasion for a big propaganda splash.

A spokesman said 68 of the prisoners turned loose were women who had been held at a women's POW camp at Qui Nhon, 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

Another Home Falls Into Sea

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — A huge crack in the earth at a clifftop residential viewsite opened wider today, tumbling an expensive home toward the Pacific Ocean.

"The house is 30 feet down the cliff and still visibly moving," said a police officer. "It went that far in just 15 minutes."

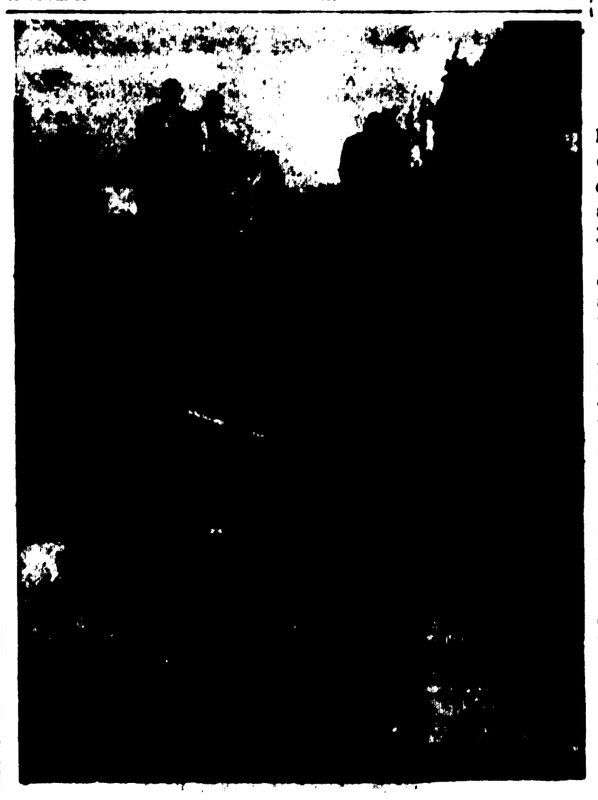
The fissure's new expansion ripped out a water main at the edge of the block-long crack, two to three feet wide in places. Utility workers shut off water and electricity.

Residents had been evacuated and officers kept spectators behind safety lines. The fissure runs along scenic Paseo del Mar Drive at the top of a 200-foot cliff in this Los Angeles suburb.

City authorities estimate six other oceanfront lots and homes were slipping toward the sea at an undetermined rate. Officials placed the seaward slippage at three-sixteenths of an inch per hour on Tuesday, but thought it had speeded up today.

Another home of the seaward side of the opening was rated in precarious position. Three guest homes at other residential sites were given up for lost.

Just a hairline crack at first, it caused little concern until it opened into a gaping 300-foot-long fissure at dusk Sunday.



STEPS LEADING down to a home in the San Pedro section of Los Angeles crumble as the earth opened up in an earthside which began Monday. Police said the slide, carrying away several expensive homes, was caused by recent small earthquakes in southern California. City investigators at the top of the steps inspect some of the damage. Hawks Gain Seats In Israel Voting

By The Associated Press

A swing to the right in Israel's national election Tuesday strengthened the nation's hawks and slightly weakened the position of Prime Minister Golda Meir's Labor coalition. But the vote represented overwhelming ratification of Mrs. Meir's uncompromising defiance of Israel's Arab foes and of the condemnations of the United Nations.

Golda Looks Glum

Israeli's 71 - year - old prime minister looked glum as she pored over election returns indicating that her coalition of four Labor parties would lose its majority in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament.

Returns from more than half of the 3,474 precincts indicated Labor would win about 58 seats, which would be a loss of five. The right-wing opposition Gahal party appeared to be winning 25 seats for a gain of three. Minor parties were vying for the remaining seats.

No Significant Change

The results are expected to cause no significant changes in the defense policies of Mrs. Meir's so-called National Unity government which contains members of all major factions including Gahal. But Gahal, having gained while Labor lost ground, may demand one or more key Cabinet posts instead of its present two ministers without portfolio.

Gahal advocates outright annexation of the Arab lands captured in the 1967 war. Labor's campaign platform was to release none of the occupied territory until peace is reached, and then to retain any territory needed for Israel's security.

Boost For Dayan

The voting shift to the right was also viewed as a boost for Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who contends that Israel's security requires retention of the Syrian Golan Heights, the Gaza Strip and the southeast coast of the Sinai Peninsula as far as the Strait of Tiran, as well as demilitarization of the west bank of the Jordan River.

Dayan, known as a hawk with little time for the doves in Mrs. Meir's Cabinet, is a member of the Labor alignment but has strong support from Gahal hard-liners.

Mead's Pledge Of No Odor Problem Doubted By SOA

By CLINT DUNATHAN

The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission, whose responsibility it is to administer and carry out the provisions of the state's Air Pollution Law, meeting in the Escanaba Area High School auditorium last night before an audience of about 400 persons heard:

1—Promises by the Mead Corp. that its proposed new kraft paper mill of the Escanaba Paper Co. will not emit disagreeable odors most of the time.

2—Pleas from citizens of Delta County and the Save Our Air Committee for assurance that if the mill does stink it will be closed until the pollution is corrected.

The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission is the agency from which Mead must obtain a permit to build the mill.

John C. Soet of the Michigan Department of Public Health is chairman of the Commission.

He said he thinks Michigan has "one of the most effective pollution control programs in the United States;" that the Michigan act "does not outlaw air pollution but provides for the means to outlaw it," and that it may take 10 years to attain the control goals.

Delay Is Asked

Mead Corp.'s engineering plans for the new kraft mill have yet to be submitted to the Commission for approval. It was indicated by H. G. Caldwell, Dayton, Mead technologist, that detailed engineering has not been completed and that this may take several months.

The Save Our Air Committee in its concluding statements to the Commission asked that the Commission withhold approval of the kraft mill construction until Mead explores other possible paper-making methods and until the people of Delta County by referendum decide if they want a county air pollution control ordinance.

Stoer told the meeting that the Commission was in Escanaba to "exchange information between the company, the Commission and the people of Delta County." Presumably a formal hearing on the Mead mill permit application will be held at a later date after detailed engineering plans are received by the Commission.

Working On Them

There are now kraft paper mills—all with odor problems about which the state has received complaints—at Ontonagon, Filer City and Muskegon in Michigan.

Bernard Bloomfield, Michigan Department of Health and staff member of the Commission, said discussions with Mead regarding the entire kraft mill project began two years ago. This is necessary because of the experience with other kraft mills in the state, and the planning is toward a mill in Escanaba that will not be a public nuisance, he said.

The odor at other kraft mills in Michigan is being worked on to eliminate the problem, he reported.

How much time have the companies been given to eliminate the problem? asked Amer Pederson, president of the Delta County Save Our Air Committee.

It may take two or three years, Bloomfield replied.

No 'Odor Problem'

Later in the meeting Chairman Soet said:

"We are not—this is my philosophy—trying to see how many industries we can close in the State of Michigan but we are trying to bring about control of pollution."

The Commission first heard presentations by O. C. Christiansen, manager of the Escanaba Paper Co., and Caldwell, Mead's technologist, Dayton.

Christiansen described the planning for the mill and the Mead objectives, saying in part:

"We are convinced the new pulp mill we are going to build in Escanaba will not create an odor problem in the community."

"Mead has never been in a position where it could say this before."

"Every piece of equipment we shall use has its counterpart in operations somewhere, but we don't know of anyone who has put them all together as we will in our new mill complex to assure the ultimate in odor control. The Escanaba mill will be the best mill ever to have been built anywhere."

They All Smell

"Although we believe our mill will be odor free we will not say this because we can't guarantee against power failures, equipment failure or even against human failure."

"We truly believe it (the kraft mill) will be a matter of pride and a mark of progress for the whole community, encouraging others to look to Escanaba as a good place to live and to do business," Christiansen said.

The representatives of the Save Our Air Committee and other citizens of the area were not so sure about that, they told the Commission.

Since the first kraft paper mill was built in 1884 and up to and including the latest built in 1969, not one has been built that does not emit a disagreeable odor, said Amer Pederson.

The experience of every community in which there is a kraft mill has been similar, said Dr. Leonard T. Vader. He said there is the promise of construction of a model mill "but actually in every single case from Maine to Oregon the kraft sulfite mill inveriably contributes to air pollution."

"All evidence points that with the Mead kraft mill there will be from time to time an offensive odor in Escanaba and Gladstone areas," he said.

County To Vote?

Dr. Vader and others of the Save Our Air Committee asked the Commission to delay decision on the Mead application and pointed to "the dismal history of management to adequately control kraft mill odor."

William Taylor, professional biologist, directed the attention of the Commission to the Save Our Air Committee's proposed air pollution control ordinance now before the Delta County Board of Supervisors. He said the decision on adoption of the Delta County ordinance is expected to go to a vote of the people.

"We respectfully request the Commission withhold any decision until the citizens of Delta County have the opportunity to make their wishes known," said Taylor.

James Vicenzi, Escanaba, speaking after Commission Chairman Stoer said comments would be limited to two minutes, said he was sympathetic with the Commission because it was tired at the lateness of the hour "but I don't think it is fair to restrict this to two minutes. Our own people are going to have to live with this for a lifetime."

Health and Property

Jerome Deloria called upon the Commission to act in preservation of the area's clean air; Ray Sabuco of the Committee read a statement representing opposition of the tourist industry to the Mead kraft mill application; Robert Ferguson called upon the Commission to protect the people of the area; and Richard Perlick of Pine Haven subdivision expressed concern that property values will decline if the kraft mill emits odors.

Ed Griffin of Maywood and the Save Our Air Committee spoke on behalf of retired citizens of the area, citing the contributions such retirees make to the local economy and called upon the Commission to "find a sensible solution that will not deprive us of the pleasure to enjoy this beautiful country so deeply loved by its people."

John Wellbridge, industrialist and SOA Committee officer, challenged Mead Corp. to explore other than the kraft process for paper making here.

"With all the agony that the kraft sulfate process has inflicted on the communities where it has been installed, we feel it would be a monumental tragedy to allow a kraft sulfate mill to be built in Delta County," he said.

Deer Cause Two Collisions

Stray deer were responsible for two accidents Tuesday, resulting in heavy damage to one car and moderate damage to another.

According to State Police, a car driven by Arthur E. Nelson, 67, Rte. 1, Bark River, was headed north on County Rd. A-35 when a deer jumped out of a ditch into the left side of his car causing heavy damage. The accident occurred at 6:15 p. m. in Ford River Township. Nelson escaped injury.

Another crash was reported to troopers when Howard Farrell, 30, Hardwood, struck and killed a deer with his car on County Rd. 569 just north of Whitney in Menominee County. There was minor damage to the front end of Farrell's car. He escaped unhurt.

2 College Students Killed In Crash

MONROE (AP)—Two Monroe County Community College students were killed Tuesday when their car collided with a tractor-trailer truck at an intersection four miles west of Monroe.

The victims were identified as David A. Brown, 20, and Judith L. Baldwin, 19, both of Gibraltar.

Another passenger, Ronald Krantz, 19, of Gibraltar, was treated and released.

Nelson gave the commission a bottle of the ore dust which he said is "creeping into the houses and into the stores" of the area.

Mrs. Frank Rabasca, 1612 Sheridan Rd., said she has lived there 26 years and she has never seen so much dust. She said her [illegible] can't even [illegible] picnic table.

Mrs. Ruth Nelson, 1608 N. 16th St., described the problem with washing until night "before they dump this stuff so the people can't see the dust coming from the terminal."

The ore terminal, which began dockpiling ore pellets and natural ores from Upper Peninsula mines for Great Lakes shipping, was constructed at a cost of over $16 million. Dust originates when ore cars are dumped and also at transfer points in the conveyor system.

The Air Pollution Control Commission of the State Dept. of Public Health met in Escanaba Tuesday, hearing its regular agenda in a four-hour afternoon meeting at the Civic Center and then holding a public meeting on the kraft process pulpmill planned by Mead Corp., for its Escanaba Paper Co., at Escanaba Area High School last night.

Besides discussing dust problems from asphalt plants in the Upper Peninsula (see related story), the commission heard three other cases — Tannehill and DeYoung Corp., Traverse City, Area Transit Co., Inc., Traverse City, and Northern Sanitation Co., Inc., Iron Mountain. All three firms have made previous appearances before the commission.

Aetna Portland Cement officials said the company would comply with regulations, either by shutting down [illegible] or installing control equipment. The president of the company told the commission that cost estimates of $3.1 million, more than double the first estimate, have caused the company toward a cheaper way of control or shutdown to meet the standards. The No. 5 kiln, the president said, has had control equipment installed.

Tannehill & DeYoung, which has an odor problem at its rendering plant, was given a 180 variance with state standards to complete installation of odor control devices on cooking equipment. It also was ordered to make a report to the commission within 90 days of its plans to control general odors released from the plant.

Burning Allowed

Wally's Auto Salvage at Iron Mountain will be allowed to [illegible] of the business district just east of Iron Mountain, to be the commission [illegible] unless he burns [illegible] fires from unserviceable [illegible] cut the junk bodies his [illegible] in Fond du Lac, Wis., will not accept them.

State officials said Forgette [illegible] the last [illegible] 200 state salvage [illegible] in the state notified that open burning is illegal and had appeared voluntarily for a permit. Members of the staff said the state, outside of the notification, has not yet taken action to enforce the statute.

Glen Anderson, Breitung Township supervisor who appeared with Forgette, said that the township has an ordinance against abandoning junked cars, but expressed concern that unless open burning of the bodies by dealers was allowed that there would be no means of disposing of the cars.

"If they won't buy them, what do we do with them?" he asked.

The commission agreed to allow Wally's to continue open burning, but only under what it termed "ideal" wind conditions.

Total Effort

House Speaker William Ryan, Detroit Democrat, proposed the other day that the tax exemptions for senior citizens in Michigan be increased from present levels. Ryan would raise the property tax exemption to $3,500 of state equalized valuation and also allow senior citizens an annual income of up to $6,000.

The immediate reaction to Ryan's proposals is that it's about time a realistic appraisal of the senior citizen's limited income situation be instituted, but before getting too anxious the Legislature should be cautious on the long-range implications.

Detroit News reporter Al Sander of the newspaper's Lansing bureau reports that "Michigan governments are giving away hundreds of millions of dollars a year — without keeping any record of it." Sander says "local governments in Michigan now levy taxes on real estate assessed at $40 billion. Since assessments theoretically are set at 50 per cent of true cash value, this reflects values of up to $80 billion. And now there are hints that perhaps an equal amount of land is beyond the reach of property taxes."

Sander says no one knows how much property is tax exempt in Michigan — not the assessors who are supposed to be setting valuations; not the governmental units whose very life depends on the income from these taxes; not the institutions that own the exempt property, not even the Legislature . . ."

* * *

The problems of tax exempt lands becomes more acute because the Legislature is now faced with the prospect of increasing taxes to finance new programs, including the educational reform proposed by Gov. William Milliken.

State Sen. Harry A. DeMaso, Battle Creek Republican, has been looking into the question of tax exemptions. He says property tax exemptions originally were intended to help an individual or organization perform a needed, praiseworthy service, but that Michigan has since gotten into the habit of granting tax exemptions to certain types of organizations whether they needed them or not.

DeMaso said the state has taken money away from local units of government and replaced it in only two cases — the senior citizens homestead tax exemption for which the state is paying local units some $23 million this year and the veterans homestead exemption which is costing $11 million.

"As it is, I know of no way to determine how much untaxed property is out there," DeMaso said.

He did come up with a few interesting figures, however. Public lands alone are worth $9.3 billion; federal buildings are worth an estimated $313 million; some $51 million in water pollution control devices are exempt from personal property taxes and some $550 million worth of fruit trees are exempt.

DeMaso said the City of Battle Creek is now studying all land within its corporate limits and finding that "something between 33⅓ per cent and 50 per cent is exempt from taxes." San Francisco recently completed a similar study and found that 54 per cent of the property within its city limits was off the tax rolls for one reason or another.

* * *

What this means, of course, is that while some organizations and individuals are exempt from taxes, the persons who are not exempt must pay more to finance state and local governments. It's only logical that if more exemptions are granted that someone is going to have to pay more to make up for the lost tax dollars.

The concern for senior citizens, particularly those who must exist on fixed Social Security and pension checks in this time of inflation, is understandable. But what about the young family trying to provide for its daily needs and yet make all the major purchases — home, furniture, appliances, automobile, etc. — necessary when starting a homestead? Aren't their problems equally as difficult in some instances? Yet there is no tax break there. Indeed, it is impossible to provide for the needs of a child on the $600 exemption allowed by the federal government on income taxes. The state is a little more reasonable at $1,200.

There are dozens of instances where taxation is inequitable, both on individual and corporate levels.

A federal tax bill is in the hearings stage in the Senate and although the bill is not the ultimate answer to the problem of equitable taxation its passage will help.

As DeMaso indicates, however, the basic need is for a total review of the entire tax structure at all levels of government. It would be a monumental chore, of course, but a piecemeal attempt at reform likely would be little better than the piecemeal method by which the tax codes were developed.

It's time to get the ball rolling.

Peninsula Potpourri

The Gogebic County Building Authority is apprehensive that the $166,000 it is offering in revenue bonds for construction of a new office building will be difficult to sell because of the "tight money" situation. According to County Welfare Director Walter Bennetts, several banks in that area have committed themselves for about $70,000 of the total bond sale. The authority hopes to obtain the funds needed for erection of a new county building to house the county road commission and welfare department. The state has declared the latter agency's present facility "inadequate" and has ordered the department to move or remodel.

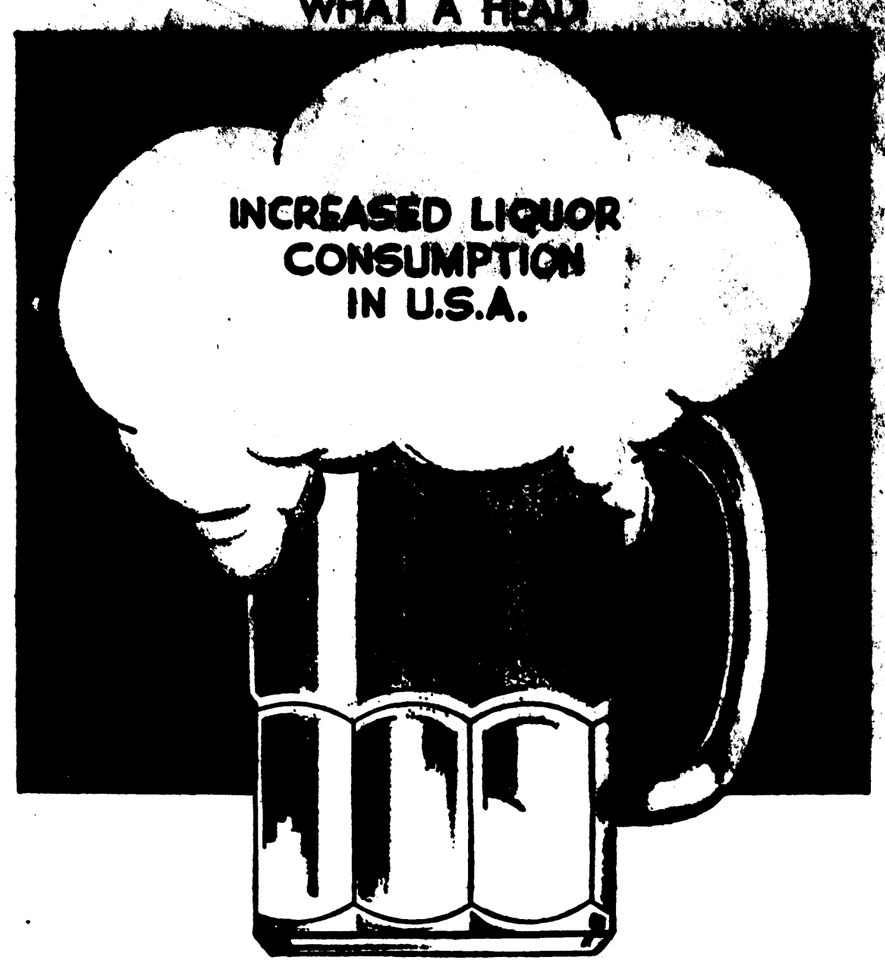
WHAT A HEAD!



Agnew Attacked Only Masochistic Element

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Poor Vice Pesident Agnew.

He has been getting it hot and heavy, even from his own side, for allegedly branding the "leaders" of the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium as "an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals."

President Nixon, whose ears would surely have turned a burning pink if he could have heard the things he was called by academic types at the particular Vietnam Moratorium meeting I attended, let his Vice President down with a thud when he informed reporters, through White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler, that he did not approve of Agnew's language.

The practice of this column is to refrain from name-calling, which should put me automatically in Nixon's corner in his disavowal of Spiro Agnew. But the fact is that Agnew did not label all the leaders of the Moratorium as "impudent snobs." He limited his sarcasm to the self-characterized intellectuals who had gone out of their way to "encourage" a prevailing "spirit of national masochism."

Letting the chips fall where they may, I must say that Agnew was entirely justified in attacking the small group of professors who think the U. S. should make sackcloth and ashes and the hair shirt the national garb. I happen to like my country and to approve of its desire, as expressed by Presidents Dwight Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and Lyndon Johnson, to stop Communist expansion in Southeast Asia. There is no reason to flagellate ourselves for our course in Vietnam, and Agnew was entirely accurate when he labelled the encouragers of masochism "effete."

* * *

There are many sound teachers in our universities, and many honorable intellectuals stood on the various Vietnam Moratorium platforms. But not every university professor is objective and lets his students make up their own minds in accordance with their reading of facts.

As I write this column, I have on my desk a mimeograph copy of an essay assignment handed to Ohio State University students by a philosophy professor who had been reading my column in the Columbus Dispatch.

The professor honored me by quoting extensively from something I had written after hearing Thanat Khoman, the Foreign Minister of Thailand, say that it might be a solution for the U. S. if Mr. Nixon were to emulate the Thai government and send only volunteers to Vietnam. My reaction, as expressed in the column, was that Nixon might split his anti-war opposition if he abolished the draft and relied on volunteers to do supply and support work in an otherwise "Vietnamized" war.

What the Ohio State philosophy professor did was to instruct his students to read the excerpts from my column carefully and to "state what is being said as concisely as you can and then criticize." He went on to tell the members of his class that "you will be graded not on the number of criticisms you make" but on the "quality of your destruction" of the column.

So this is one particular philosophy professor's notion of what it is to be fair-minded. His students are not to be allowed to agree either wholly or in part with the argument they are asked to summarize and criticize. They must "destroy" it effectively in order to get a passing mark.

This took me back a long way in time. As a college sophomore I had a professor who asked the members of his class in contemporary politics to do an essay assignment on the "best hope for the world." He expected us to fall in line with his pet theory that only the League of Nations could save humanity.

Indulging in some sophomore perversity, I chose to ignore the League of Nations in favor of submitting a paper on the need for birth control in Asian nations if the world were to be saved. The professor gave me a flat zero. I have always hated the man's memory.

So I feel for those Ohio State philosophy students who are permitted only the freedom of agreeing with their professor. And if Spiro Agnew wishes to attack those academic characters who encourage "a spirit of national masochism" I will defend him in his limited criticism, even though President Nixon has chosen to repudiate his style.

Letters To The Press

COOPERATION NEEDED

This letter is in reference to the proposed rest area development at 11th St. and Ludington. The editorial in the Oct. 23 paper was much to the point, and we heartily agree with it.

Since we live outside of the city limits of Escanaba, the City Council could, presumably, tell us to mind our own business. However, both the Chamber and Council realize, I'm sure, that those of us from rural areas do our share to add to the economy of Main Street Escanaba.

This letter is written in the hope that our personal plea for a rest area will not fall on deaf ears. The people who must travel any distance to do their shopping need a place to freshen-up, collect their wits, and take a load off the feet. This is long overdue.

The Chamber of Commerce and Council should realize that money spent this way will, in the long run, pay off. Any money invested in this facility will belong to the city and the people of Escanaba.

Since the Standard Oil Co. has been so generous at the outset, it would be a shame indeed, if the Council and Chamber could not get together to carry this project through. Perhaps the Council could give the merchants some financial encouragement, as in the case of the parking lots on 1st Ave. N. A spirit of cooperation at this time would add a facility that this area badly needs.

Mrs. Frank Bender, Jr.
Pine Ridge

NECESSITY

My husband, who is retired, and I read with great interest Mrs. Kallio's letter which appeared in the Daily Press on October 22, and your editorial of October 23, with respect to a rest area in downtown Escanaba.

We make a shopping trip to Escanaba about once every 10 days, leaving home around 10 a. m. and arriving home around 4 or 4:30 p. m. It takes us all day to accomplish our many errands, with time out for lunch and sometimes a coffee break before heading home. I know of two places where I can use the washroom, but apparently everyone is under the misapprehension that a man has no such need.

The "City Fathers" of Escanaba are constantly planning and working toward making Escanaba the "Shopping Center of the U. P." and they deserve credit for these endeavors. However, they certainly must realize that the consumers from many areas outside of Escanaba contribute a great deal toward the financial well-being of Escanaba merchants and in order to make this contribution many of us drive long distances and spend many hours in Escanaba to shop for our many needs. A public washroom facility is not necessarily a "nice" thing to have available, but rather a necessary "convenience," just as the off-the-street parking lots are a boon to those of us who are not too lazy to use them and do a little extra walking.

There is, however, something to be said about the carelessness of the public and the maintenance of a rest facility. In the two washrooms I have had occasion to use in Escanaba, conditions at times were deplorable—toilet tissue and paper towels on the floor instead of in the containers provided, toilets not flushed, water faucets not turned off completely and worst of all, walls and doors defaced with lipstick, etc. If everyone did his share in helping to maintain public facilities—and those include parks, beaches, etc.—the battle of maintenance would not be a losing one.

So, if it comes to pass that Escanaba eventually has a rest area, I hope they do, I also hope that the general public will give it the same attention and care they give their bathrooms in their own homes.

Opening lead — eight of diamonds.

Deception may be defined as the art of persuading your opponent that a condition exists which actually does not, or persuading him that a condition does not exist which actually does.

To be effective, a deceptive play does not need to be elaborate. In fact, the simpler the deception, the more likely it is to work, as this deal shows.

East won the diamond lead with the queen and returned a trump. Declarer followed with the nine and West made the abnormal play of winning with the queen instead of the ten.

West realized that his play of the queen could not affect his eventually scoring four trump tricks, but he hoped to persuade South by the falsecard that East had the ten and that the trumps were therefore divided 3-2.

It was a simple but diabolical scheme and declarer, rightly or not, fell into the trap. He ruffed the diamond return at trick three and led back a trump — at which point the roof suddenly caved in.

Instead of going down two, which would have been South's portion had he abandoned further trump leads, South wound up going down six! West won the trump return with the ten, cashed the A-K, running declarer out of trumps, and returned a diamond.

As a result the defenders scored four hearts and five diamonds to hold declarer to four tricks and defeat him 1,700 points. On top of that, to add insult to injury, West also scored 100 honors!

Probably South should not have swallowed the bait but settled for a two-trick defeat. Declarer's course of play was much too dangerous and, at best, could save him only one trick if the trumps were actually divided 3-2.

But this does not diminish the credit clearly due West for luring South to his doom, and he fully deserved the magnificent windfall that came his way.

Answers Amateur Scientists Playing With Danger

Dear Ann Landers: I have a message for parents whose kids are amateur scientists. Sooner or later, that son of yours who is somewhere between 12 and 17 years of age will find his way to a mail order source for more interesting ingredients. The boy may also trade formulas with the neighbor kid. Quite often the inexperienced amateur scientist does not know that the adding of one part or measure of two chemicals will produce one size bloom but 4 parts or measure of the same chemical will produce 16 times the explosive force.

Our 15-year-old son who has always been cautious, responsible and of sound judgment lost his left hand while enjoying his favorite hobby. For some unknown reason he decided to use a metal rod to stir the mixture instead of a wooden one. Even so the boy was very lucky. He could have been blinded. Please convey this message to other parents. No need to use our name. Just sign us—Denver People

Dear Denver: Thanks for the warning. Every parent who has an amateur scientist in the family, please take note.

Dear Ann Landers: You've had some difficult problems through the years, but I'm willing to bet mine will be one of the toughest you've run into in a long time.

My husband and I had a very good marriage. We enjoyed fifteen wonderful years together. Three years ago he was killed in a hunting accident. He was only 40. Our oldest daughter who was 13 years at the time adored her daddy. When he died she became very depressed and insecure. The day of the funeral she asked me to promise that I would never marry again. Since that time she has asked me at least a dozen times to repeat the promise and I have done so.

I have enjoyed the company of four or five interesting men during the past two years and now I have met one who is very special. He wants to marry me—and I want to marry him. Last night my daughter asked me to repeat my promise. She must be reading my mind. What should I do?—Excedrin Headache

Dear Ex: Life is a series of choices and decisions. And now you must decide if you are going to pass up an opportunity to have a full life, or stand by a promise made when your mind was clouded by grief and twisted with pain. It is a promise you should not have made, and one which, in my opinion, should not be kept.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column on V.D. was the most helpful thing I have read in a newspaper since I can remember. It not only gave lots of valuable information, but it gave me the nerve to ask you this question. (I'm a boy 16.)

Here goes: Can masturbation bring on V.D.? My folks would kill me if he knew I wrote a letter like this. I can't send you a self-addressed envelope. Please answer in the paper.—Phoenix

Dear Phx: Masturbation will not cause V.D. nor will it cause pimples, dark circles under the eyes, insanity, nor will it hurt you in any way. The worst thing about masturbation is that it produces guilt because of all the old wives' tales which have been scaring kids to death since the Year One.

Capitol Fire Hazards Noted

By DON ROSENBERG
PANAX staff writer
(First of three articles)

LANSING—Scaffolding left by an electrical contractor blocks the only enclosed route to safety from fire on the fourth floor of the state capitol.

Scores could be trapped in a massive pileup of humanity in case of fire.

The big planks of the scaffold rest on a two-by-four brace that would take precious minutes to move under ideal conditions. In an emergency among fearful people, the result would be disaster on the steps of the steel staircase built in a triangular area outside the dome.

"Even under ideal circumstances, that stairway is just a stairway," said Lt. Glen Tanner, of the Michigan's State Police fire marshal's division. "It's not much better than any other stairway."

Six Other Retreats

There are six other retreats from fire on the fourth floor, four of them open stairways which would become "chimneys for the smoke and gases as well as flame," Tanner said.

And there are two elevators, which Tanner and Lansing Fire Marshal Philip Alber agreed would be the worst places to be with a fire raging through the building.

Files bound for storage and lawmakers' stationery headed for the printer are piled in boxes in the fourth floor corridors. Discarded wooden doors are stored in the far north end of an attic on the same floor.

"It's not good," said Tanner. "They (the state) have not done anything to make that building safe."

He pointed to the open staircases and the necessary volume of paper it takes to operate a legislature, the gaping rotunda which would become a flue carrying fire, smoke, and asphyxiating gases upward.

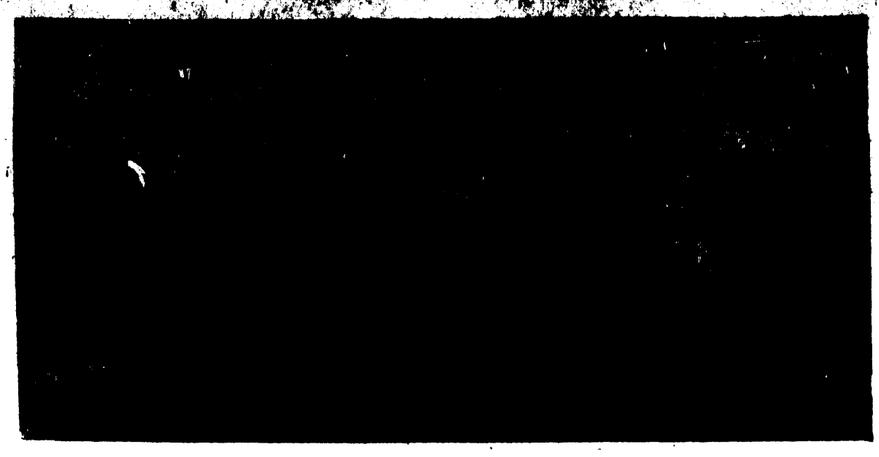
Escape Near "Furnace"

"That all is the bestial part of it," he said. "Even that inside fire escape is just a staircase next to what could be a furnace. The stairways down are nothing but chimneys.

"Some of them (legislators) know it's a firetrap. We can't take the state to court, we can only point out what is wrong. They have not done the things necessary to make it safe."

Tanner said there are ways to make the building safe but declined to enumerate the spot.

Alber said the department is on call to protect any state office building in Lansing, including the capitol. Inspections, he said, are handled by the state fire marshal's office.



AN ARTIST'S conception of what the new capitol building proposed for Michigan might look like.

Alber said the legislature has cooperated with most of his office's informal recommendations, but the installation of wire-coated glass windows for fire resistance still hasn't been accomplished. He said he "wasn't at all happy about" the state drilling a hole in a first floor vault to get air to the official state seal and original records locked inside and the hole was plugged.

Planning Underway

Albers did have a hope for the 75 to 100 lawmakers and staff people if fire broke out or swept up from below to the fourth floor.

He said a fire alarm from the capitol brings two ladder companies, two engine companies, a high pressure (water) company and a deputy chief. The department has two 100-foot and 85-foot aerial ladders.

"We could reach anywhere there are people in the capitol building," he said. "But most of the people trapped in such a building die from smoke and gas rather than flame."

Michigan is planning a new capitol and has already appropriated more than $6 million to plan and start construction. Controversy rages and the three choices still exist:

- A new capitol at up to $75 million.
- Restoration of the present capitol for up to $17 million.
- Doing nothing.

Engineer William C. Roege, working with the Legislative Fiscal Agency on building problems, said there is some pressure from Lansing businessmen to keep the old capitol where it is, at business' front door.

But problems mount annually with the aging capitol, now 88 years old.

Roege estimates it will cost $15 million to $20 million to restore the capitol even as a historical site, a demand of the historical buffs.

Efficiency Low

Room sizes are fixed and engineers are called in to determine whether supporting arches and columns will be damaged before a door is cut into a wall. Because the rooms are small, Roege said they would make poor display areas for historical artifacts. The original building had 180,000 square feet of usuable space, reduced by 1966 to 94,000 square feet.

Michigan's capitol now has a space efficiency ratio of 52 per cent. The usuable space, under renovation would drop to 46,800 square feet, an efficiency ratio of 42 per cent, a figure which would be further reduced if the building were to be changed to meet fire regulations. Modern office buildings have an efficiency ratio of 82 to 85 per cent.

Roege also said the capitol is in danger of crumbling at its base.

In the sub-basement which houses heating and other equipment and an area where school children used to have their sack lunches, the floors are below the bottom of the walls. There is an area between the floors and the walls which is a gradually cracking combination of cement and small stones. Reports show the weight on the soil is grossly in excess of modern standards.

Costs Rising

Fiscal agency experts said the cost of restoring the 88-year-old capitol is rising 12 to 15 per cent every year. New construction costs are going up 10 to 12 per cent, or $500,000 a year on a $50 million project.

Restoration would require a five-year hiatus for state government, finding another temporary place to operate. The City of Lansing has offered its civic center, a block south and west, for sale, but the city wants enough money to build another civic center elsewhere.

Soo Mausoleum Up For Sale

SAULT STE. MARIE — A real estate salesman here is trying to sell a mausoleum and he says he even has a few prospects.

Tony Andary acquired the former city owned vault because the city has built another one and immediately became the target of quipsters.

"One guy suggested I convert it into a motel and call it Boot Hill hotel," he said.

Andary said he might convert the old vault into an office complex because it has plenty of floor space and the surrounding land provides plenty of parking.

"I might even offer it for cold storage," he added.

Church Survey Hits Laxity Among Negroes

DEARBORN (AP) — A church survey in an all-white area showed that most of those responding think Negroes should do more to help themselves and clergymen less preaching on civil rights.

The survey consisted of a detailed questionnaire on attitudes toward Negroes on a number of subjects, ranging from housing to personal relations.

It was mailed to each of the 2,200 adult members of Divine Child Catholic Church in the Detroit suburbs of Dearborn and Dearborn Heights. More than one-third responded.

"We really thought the results would be worse—that even more prejudice would be reflected — considering Dearborn's image," said Gilbert Donahue, a director of the survey.

Dearborn has been the target of legal action by Michigan's Civil Rights Commission, which has accused Mayor Orville Hubbard and other officials with discriminatory practices.

The survey was handled by the Divine Child Human Relations Council, and Magr. Herbert Weier, Divine Child pastor, said the questionnaire was sent out without his knowledge but that he approved its purposes. He said he was "surprised that there was so much prejudice" in his parish.

"I guess they just don't talk about these things to me," he added.

Donahue explained that the council had been carrying on an educational program in the area, with guest speakers, forums and discussions on racial issues and wanted to asses the results.

"We also thought that if we knew what the attitudes were, and could pinpoint the areas of greatest concern, we could function more effectively with concentrate on those areas," he added.

Fifty-four per cent of those responding to the survey said they think laws and court decisions on civil rights have "gone too far" while 42 per cent believe recent efforts to promote full civil rights for all Americans have "gone a little overboard."

On the subject of schools 48 per cent said they would welcome Negro students if they lived in the parish and 30 per cent would "tolerate" black students.

Ten per cent said they would resist and 12 per cent said they would take their children out of school if black children were enrolled.

Replies to a question pertaining to clergymen showed 84 per cent disapproved of priests or ministers taking part in protest marches 69 per cent didn't want clergymen organizing civil rights groups and 49 per cent even disapproved of sermons on the subject.

Only 46 per cent approved of clergymen preaching on civil rights.

To a multiple-choice question on what Negroes need most the most frequently-chosen answer "more self-help."

Tractor Mishap Kills U. P. Man

MENOMINEE (AP) — A 45-year-old tractor driver, Alfred Palmer of Menominee, died Tuesday afternoon when his vehicle turned over and pinned him underneath. Menominee County sheriff's deputies said the accident occurred near the Wisconsin - Michigan border, where he was working on a summer camp construction project.

The painted pumpkins are on display at a local artist's home — each one an original. "Pumpkin Day," is a special day for Robert, for he will also be five years old. (AP Wirephoto)

"I do not believe that it serves the interests of this voting public to maintain this record," Cavanagh said, adding to his public and accomplishments.

The mayor's remarks followed by a speech given by Wayne County Sheriff John Mad... ...the candidates said De... ..."had a strong dissatisfaction with the operations and policies of the past."

Cavanagh's speech Tuesday was a five-page point-by-point rebuttal to Griffin' criticisms.

"ZODIAC" — —This is the poster San Francisco police are circulating to catch the killer who sends them notes signed "Zodiac." Drawing at left is from description by witnesses to the slaying of a cab driver, and the drawing at right was made after further questioning of the witnesses. The poster says he is "35-45 Years, approximately 5'8", Heavy Build, Short Brown Hair, possibly with Red Tint, Wears Glasses. Armed with 9 mm Automatic." He is wanted for four other slayings in nearby Napa and Vallejo.

Railroads Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad industry, [illegible] for an accident rate which has almost doubled in eight years, is expected to reluctantly endorse the Nixon administration's freight safety bill.

The industry, labor unions and the administration, including Transportation Secretary John Volpe, were called to testify on rail safety during hearings starting today by a Senate Commerce subcommittee.

Abrupt Turnabout

The industry's endorsement, however reluctant, would mark an abrupt turnabout from last spring when rail spokesmen insisted the industry should continue, as it has for the past century, to police its own safety.

However, some industry critics see the move as an attempt to halt momentum behind two other bills, which take a tougher approach than the administration measure.

All three measures would require the secretary of transportation to establish minimum safety standards for all phases of railroad operations.

Stiffer Penalties

But the other bills, introduced by Sens. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., impose, among other things, stiffer penalties and enforcement tools.

Federal regulatory authority currently extends only to locomotives, power brakes, signals, hours of service of employes and some safety appliances such as ladders and handrails on boxcars.

While the federal government can prescribe how a dangerous commodity shall be packaged for rail shipment, it cannot inspect the wheels or undercarriage of the car in which it is to be moved, or the rails and track over which it is to pass.

And while greater amounts of dangerous commodities—including Vietnam-bound ammunition, volatile industrial chemicals and, until recently, surplus Army war gas, move over the nation's railroads, more and more trains are jumping tracks with potentially disasterous consequences.

Old Rolling Stock

Part of the blame must be laid to decades-old rolling stock and rails forged at the turn of the century. In addition, labor unions charge the railroads with poor maintenance and failure to head even existing safety laws.

Allowing the industry to police itself—unlike such comparable industries as airlines and interstate truck lines—has produced questionable results.

Train accidents, two-thirds of which are derailments caused by factors not covered by existing safety laws, are up from 4,148 in 1961 to 8,088 in 1968—"a significant increase by any [illegible]

The National Transportation Safety Board—NTSB—provided other examples:

—The cause of a derailment last Jan. 25 at Laurel, Miss., of a Southern Railroad freight train carrying liquified petroleum gas which exploded, resulting in two deaths and evacuation of the town, was found in a NTSB report not yet released —to be a wheel which broke under stress. The wheel, and thousands like it on trains across the country, met standards established by the AAR.

—The derailment of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train Jan. 1, 1968, at Dunreith, Ind., caused evacuation of the town when several volatile carriers careened off the tracks, setting off a fire which raged for 10 hours and destroyed a cannery —the town's principle business [illegible] the railroads, considering they are doing the best they can under financial limitations imposed by an inflation-plagued economy, say one of every four train accidents is caused by human error—putting the onus on the unionized employes.

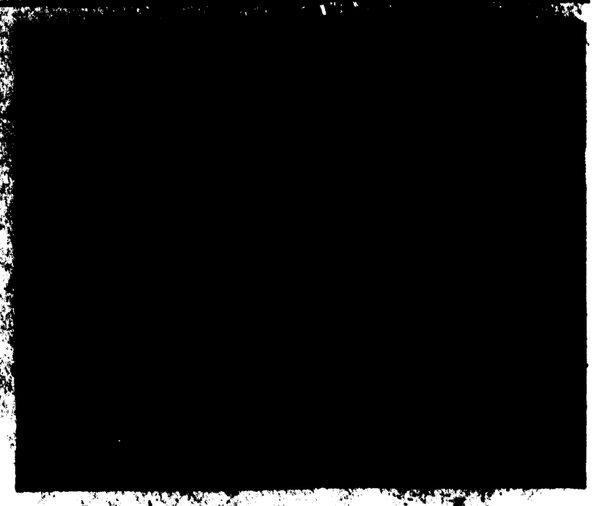
Fighting outdoor legislation, a spokesman for the Association of American Railroads—AAR—contended federal safety laws would impose untenable finan-

Regulatory Powers

A [illegible] year ago, a [illegible] chaired by Secretary of the [illegible] government report recommended, in part, "that legislation augmenting broad federal regulatory powers should be enacted with certain safeguards."

The report came from a task force on rail safety created by Volpe, composed of railroad management and labor, members of state regulatory agencies and personnel from the Federal Railroad Administration—FRA.



HIS SWEETS WENT SOUR — Dr. Michael Sveda, discoverer of cyclamate, the diet drink sweetener the Food and Drug Administration [illegible] because tests which were fed cyclamate developed cancer, quite reportedly in his Greenwich, Conn., office that the same ingredient of an ordinary substance such as salt might be equally harmful. He questions the finding.

Farmers Urged To Test Soil

U. P. fertilizer dealers held a meeting recently in Powers for the purpose of exchange information between the dealers and county extension agents and specialists.

Among the extension agents attending the meeting was Joe Heirman of Delta County. The U. P. agents told the dealers what results they were getting on demonstration plots using different amounts of fertilizer. The dealers in turn told the agents and specialists what type of products they were planning to stock in their inventory.

"It is hoped the exchange will bring about some valuable information for area farmers," said Joe Heirman.

Fertilizer dealers and agents both agreed that farmers should get their soil tested before placing an order for a specific type of fertilizer.

"Now is the time to take soil samples in for testing," Heirman urged area farmers. He said too often many farmers wait until a week before spring planting to bring their samples in for testing. "A soil is brought in and results are expected yesterday," he said.

According to Heirman there is only one soil testing laboratory in the Upper Peninsula. It is in Marquette. If all soil samples go there in the spring, one would be lucky to get the results within two weeks, he added.

At the present time samples would get immediate attention because soil sample traffic is light, regardless of the crop you plan to fertilize for higher production.

Heirman recommends that all area farmers try to get their soil tested soon. "The cost of soil testing is small and the results can be very valuable," he said.

The director, however, warned farmers against the misuse of fertilizer. "Too much fertilizer can sometimes burn young seedlings," Heirman said.

The United States Supreme Court first convened in 1790 in New York City. Though required by law to sit twice annually, the court had almost no business in its first three years.

Meter Maid Enemy Number One Nabbed

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — The Great Parking Ticket Caper has been closed with the capture and speedy trial of a feathered culprit who had become Meter Maid Enemy No. 1 and a hero of motorists everywhere.

It was a sweater, in citation yellow, that spelled an end recently to the month-long career in crime of Blacky Crow.

Crow's daring snatches of parking tickets from auto windshields had left police muttering in earthly frustration as he made his airborne getaways.

Police are uncertain how many tickets Crow took but it is believed to be several dozen.

The past few days, Crow had been hanging out near a used car business headed by Gus Cutrubus. Employes would throw out brightly colored objects for Crow to pick up.

Then, Friday, Cutrubus walked across the lot wearing a sweater the same shade yellow as the city's parking tickets. Crow followed him, and Cutrubus made a citizen's arrest.

"He followed Gus like a little puppy dog—right into a building," said a happy Chief L.A. Jacobsen, who immediately charged the bird with petty larceny.

Judge Charles Sneddon imposed a sentence of 30 days in the pen, a wire enclosure to be kept by Cutrubus.

Seaway Closing Set For Dec. 10

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP) — Official closing for the St. Lawrence Seaway has been set for Dec. 10, but it may remain open later depending on the weather.

Seaway tonnage is reported down about 23 per cent this year, mainly because of an iron ore strike and a decline in wheat shipments.

About 29 million tons of cargo have passed through the Seaway so far this year, compared with 37 million at this time last year. Last year the total reached 48 million tons.

GM Appealing Ralph Nader's $21 Million Suit

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — General Motors appealed to New York's highest court Tuesday to dismiss $21 million in damages alleged by safety crusader Ralph Nader in a suit charging the giant automobile company violated his right of privacy.

The Court of Appeals delayed a decision on the company's motion.

The case stems from the action of General Motors in investigating Nader after the publication of his book, "Unsafe at any Speed," which criticized the company's efforts in automotive safety.

General Motors has conceded that its investigators tapped Nader's telephone, shadowed him, made threatening telephone calls, and attempted to entice him into an illicit sexual relationship.

Company lawyers contended Tuesday that the company was interested in its critic and merely wanted to know more about him.

Nader sought $7 million damages for each of four separate causes of action:

—That the investigation in states other than New York violated his right of privacy.

—That the investigation in New York violated his right of privacy.

—That the entire investigation was reckless and caused him emotional distress.

—That General Motors prevented publication of articles critical of it and the automobile industry.

The company has let stand the third cause of action—that the investigation was reckless—but seeks dismissal of the other three.

The company's motion has been denied in the State Supreme Court and its Appellate Division. If it is denied also in the high court, the case will return to the Supreme Court for trial.

Nader brought the suit in early 1967.

Color Tour

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Tourist Council reports there will be at least one more weekend for viewing foliage color in the state. Many areas in Southern Michigan counties report near peak color, expected to continue through the coming weekend, the bureau said.

'Junker' Won't Make Big Splash Dip After All

ST. IGNACE (AP) — The first unofficial car to cross the Mackinac Bridge 12 years ago will be saved for posterity — possibly in a museum — instead of being dumped to a watery grave off the bridge Friday.

Al Carter, a jazz drummer from Chicago, wanted to dump the 22-year old station wagon off the bridge as an appropriate farewell.

Lawrence A. Rubin, executive secretary of the Mackinac Bridge Authority, said there had been some criticism of the scheme.

State Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, termed the idea "idiocy." Stamm said water pollution was involved.

Rubin said the project of plunging the car off the bridge previously had been cleared by the U.S. Coast Guard and the State Department of Natural Resources. Junker cars are used in some locations as fish habitat, Rubin noted.

"Plans are underway to preserve the vehicle for posterity and possible placement in a museum at some future date," Rubin said.

"There could be some flak about it afterwards," he said of the dunking plan for the car. "This seems to be more appealing than dumping it in the straits."

Prentiss M. Brown, Bridge [illegible] Friday afternoon.

Carter said the car had traveled all over the United States and has been at every state capitol, so is a logical vehicle.

Escanaba Given One More Year On Asphalt Plant

The City of Escanaba Tuesday was granted a one year variance with state air pollution regulations by the State Air Pollution Control Commission.

The action will allow the city to operate its plant located near the electric generating station for the 1970 paving season to complete commitments on street paving work next summer.

Commissioners ordered the city to submit a report in six months detailing plans for replacement of the plant.

The city was informed Sept. 25 that its asphalt plant is "not operated in compliance" with state rules and regulations and asked to appear at the meeting Tuesday.

City Manager George Harvey said the city is not protesting the order "relative to the closing" of the plant, but needed the "variance" to complete work.

Control Not Feasible

"Obsolescence and physical attrition have made the plant unfeasible to operate economically," Harvey said. "The plant was purchased and operated by the City of Escanaba since 1952. Obviously, it would not be feasible to place control devices on our present obsolete facility.

"Our immediate problem is that we have not had time to explore all of the alternatives, although we are certain that because of the aforestated reason we cannot justify continued operation with an expenditure for a pollution control device," Harvey continued.

"The most important reason for our request, however, is that the City of Escanaba, operating on a fiscal year, is committed to performing street work during 1970," he said. "At the present time we have ceased operation for the year. We are, however, committed to finish our budgeting projects next year, and at the price specified July 1, 1969. We have material on hand to complete this work and if we were forced to discontinue operations significant waste would occur, not to mention additional costs in contracting our committed work."

New Plant Possible

Harvey said the city is considering construction of a new asphalt plant which will include air pollution control equipment, but there is a problem in finding the estimated $250,000 it would cost.

Escanaba's asphalt plant was one of several plants in the Upper Peninsula discused by the commission. State Health Dept. officials said there are about 135 asphalt plants in Michigan. Some of them cause no problems, officials said, but others have been ordered to control pollution or close.

Other appearances before the Air Pollution Control Commission and action taken were:

Fox Valley Construction Co., Appleton, Wis., notified that if does not submit satisfactory program by Jan. 1, 1970, all statutory means will be taken to enforce compliance;

Hocking Construction Co., South Range, granted 10 days operation of portable plant at Baraga without controls to complete construction project;

Action Deferred

City of Iron Mountain, action deferred until staff investigation of residential area in Iron Mountain affected by fallout from the plant can be completed;

Marquette County Road Commission, variance granted to produce 8,000 tons of asphalt to complete project with committment to report on plans to control pollution within six months;

Payne & Dolan Construction Co., Milwaukee, Wis., granted one year variance for plant at Lindberg's pit, County Rd. 480, Marquette County. Company president said other plants in U. P. will meet standards.

Mathey Construction Co., LaCrosse, Wis., and Fayas & Son Asphalt Paving Co., Kingsford, reported to the commission they will comply with regulations by 1970. Health officials also were ordered to contact the Britton Asphalt Paving Co., Marquette, and Custom Asphalt Paving Co., Negaunee, and other firms at Houghton and Sault Ste. Marie to determine their plans to meet specifications.

Rotarians Hear Health Officer

There's a "happy view" of the question of water pollution and this optimistic viewpoint was presented by Cletus Courchene, engineer in charge, U. P. office of the Michigan Department of Health, to the Rotary Club Tuesday noon.

Francis D'Amour of the Rotary program committee introduced the speaker and Thomas Strasbel, club president, conducted the meeting.

Courchene said there's an "environmental revolution" movement underway with the discussions now going on about pollution controls; that public attitudes and objectives have changed enormously within recent years; and objectives have progressed beyond the public health sense into goals of odor control and esthetic values.

Michigan as elsewhere is not keeping pace with pollution because pollution prevention has not been accomplished, largely because the technology of water pollution control is not as well advanced as in other technological fields, he said.

He described the encouragement that is being given at state and federal levels and said additional funding is anticipated if federal pledges are to be met.

Citizens are banding together as in Delta and Marquette counties to preserve the environment from pollution, but he warned: "Beware of the environmental purist, who is as far out as the individual who believes there should be no controls."

Courchene was optimistic of the future and believes controls will be found and enforced to conquer pollution problems.

'Dragnet' Episode To Be Used Here In Crime Fight

A filmed episode of the nationally televised "Dragnet" program will be used by Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to alert Michigan citizens to the dangers of pyramid franchise schemes some of which have been active in Michigan.

The film will be shown at the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce building at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 4. Members of the Chamber and the public in general are invited to attend.

The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office, in cooperation with local Chambers of Commerce and service clubs, has set up a series of meetings throughout the state at which the film will be shown. Those attending will then be advised of latest developments concerning these pyramid franchise operations.

Kelley contacted Jack Webb of Mark VII Limited Productions of University City, Calif., and obtained an agreement to use the Dragnet episode in an educational series to alert Michigan consumers.

Kelley said his office "has been flooded with inquiries and complaints regarding certain companies now recruiting distributors for various pyramid schemes. We feel that the best protection for the consumer is to have sufficient knowledge o the method of operation of these plans so that they may be aware of the potential dangers involved.

"The film generously provided by Webb is entitled, 'The Pyramid,' and explains in clear and understandable terms the pitfalls of some of these pyramid operations."

Albert G. Isaac, field representative and investigator of the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office, will show the film. Isaac was a member of the Detroit Police Department from 1942 to 1967. In June 1967, he joined the Attorney General's Organized Crime Division as Deputy Chief. In August, 1968, he was assigned to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

State Surplus Not As Great As Anticipated

LANSING (AP) — Michigan faces a possible $240 million deficit in mid-1971 if taxes are not increased and programs cut, says the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Senator Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, said Tuesday that previously released figures —indicating a June 1970 surplus of up to $72 million—may have left the impression that "we're going to have a surplus amount of money to work with" on Gov. William Milliken's education reform program.

"That's not true," Zollar told a Tuesday news conference. "I don't want the public impression to be one that it is not necessary to do anything in the fiscal area."

Even without the governor's program, Zollar said, the state could face a deficit of $165 million.

Zollar said budget projections, based on the same percentage of revenue increase the state has experienced in past years, indicate expected revenue to total some 1.555 billion, with a projected surplus of some 54 million.

Projected expenditures, he said, would include a base of 1.385 billion (the expenditures for the current fiscal year, 125 million in such built-in commitments as additional employes and civil service pay raises and some 94 million more to continue school programs without improvements.

That totals some 1.774 billion — 165 million more than revenue.

"It's evident to those of us in the fiscal area that there are two things to do," he said.

The first approach would be to take a "hard line" on spending and cut it "in every conceivable manner consistent with state services. Politically this is a real tough one," Zollar noted.

"The other is obviously raising taxes," he said. "And unless we make every effort to cut unnecessary expenditures, the public will not accept an indiscriminate increase in taxes."

Drive Moving On Schedule

The professional branch of the 1969 Delta United Services campaign is progressing on schedule, it was reported today by chairman in the drive.

Attorney Thomas Butch and Attorney Ralph B. K. Peterson, co-chairman of the legal, accounting and funeral directors division, expressed confidence and optimism in the campaign.

Peterson said he believes these persons, especially, are aware of the need to support the 11 Delta County agencies and will strive to see the drive is a success this year.

Ray Taylor of Taylor Insurance Agency is contacting adjusting and sales offices of the various insurance companies and adjusting firms. Taylor urged that the employers or office managers personally appeal to their co-workers to contribute to D.U.S.

Dr. Roger Beauchamp, DDS, is chairman of the dental section. Area doctors were made aware of the annual D.U.S. campaign through the Delta Medical Association at a recent meeting.

"To date the professionals of the Delta county associations have shown a willingness to participate in making Delta county a better place to live," said the co-chairmen. All of the co-chairmen are readily available to answer pertinent questions or make available further campaign material upon request.

Laird Predicts More Cutbacks Of Installations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today he anticipates further cutbacks in military installations besides those announced Monday as the Pentagon's latest economy move.

The announcement came as Laird released a list of 260 actions in the United States and Puerto Rico "to consolidate, reduce, realign or close military installations."

Laird said Monday there also would be 37 cutbacks in military installations overseas. He added today none of the bases involved are in Europe, Vietnam, Thailand or Korea.

Laird noted the reshuffle would save approximately 2000 million annually and that about 27,200 military and 27,000 civilian positions will be eliminated.

The reductions are part of a 3 billion savings Laird announced as a goal on Aug. 21.

GOP Clears Mafia-Led Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon security officials cleared a Pennsylvania contractor for access to secret information despite reports in police and congressional files linking the company to the Mafia.

Medico Industries Inc. of Pittston, Pa., which has received $12 million in government contracts since 1966, had a security clearance from Jan. 28, 1968, to June 30, 1968. The clearance was terminated at the company's request, a Pentagon source said, after security officials asked for additional information about company officers.

Pentagon records indicate Medico Industries has performed well on all its defense work, involving contracts with the Army, Navy and Air Force. It now is working on a $4 million contract to produce metal parts for 2.75 inch rocket warheads, used by U.S. forces in Vietnam, but this particular job does not require access to classified material.

Defense Department regulations require that the principal officers of a company be checked through FBI name and fingerprint files before the firm can be cleared for access to classified information.

Nixon Seeking Suggestions For War Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has encouraged key administration officials, and experts to send him suggestions about his state of the Vietnam war policy speech.

Sources say the result has been literally dozens of memos outlining recommendations and proposals for the Nov. 3 TV-radio appearance. The memos range from peace-making to war-making to truce-making to the shape of the post-Vietnam world in Southeast Asia.

But officials warn against expectations of any world shaking pronouncements.

While saying it is possible some of the ideas may be included in the address, officials are worried the public may be expecting too much from the well-advertised speech.

Speculation on what the President may or may not do, according to the official sources, has exceeded by far Nixon's latitude for action.

For example, it is highly unlikely Nixon would dump his support for the Saigon government as some antiwar elements have suggested or that he will declare a unilateral cease-fire as others have called for.

Nixon is expected to continue his support of the present Saigon regime and resist efforts for any coalition peace government, such as the Viet Cong and North Vietnam have demanded. But the President could suggest a broadened base for the present government.

Auto Wreckers Stay Step Ahead Of Junk

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A remarkable feat was accomplished last year by the nation's auto wreckers. For the first time in memory they disposed of more vehicles than were abandoned a score of something like 9 million to 7.5 million units.

Dismantling ripping grinding, hacking, compacting, baling burning and burying some 15,000 companies employing 98,500 workers reduced the nation's incredible backlog of automotive junk to less than 30 million units.

If you think this is no major feat consider what the odds must be in the junkyard battle:

Adding to the pile each year is the production of the world's largest most automated and sometimes wealthiest companies. The big car companies have been turning out hundreds of thousands of vehicles for decades. In this year alone their production will exceed nine million units.

Trying to keep pace is a disposal industry made up of many small companies without production lines—17 per cent are one-man operations—often using primitive methods poorly financed and often poorly managed scrambling to "outproduce" Detroit.

Odds May Change

Gradually however the odds might be changing for a preliminary draft of a study just completed by the Commerce Department shows that surprisingly the efforts of these small companies add up to a huge industry indeed.

Shipments by auto wreckers in 1967 totaled $5.3 billion for example, a figure equal to shipments of aircraft engines and parts, and which exceeds by far the dollar value of radio and television receiver shipments.

Technology also is helping the industry become more efficient and productive and some companies, in fact, have installed production lines to dismantle vehicles for their individual parts or for sale as junk.

Plans Listed

The study recommends, among other things, that:

—The federal government consider a program of loans, technical research and grants to assist industry and local governments to build scrap shredders, balers and incinerators for processing automotive scrap.

—The federal government should study the technical, economic and national defense benefits which might result from stockpiling of motor vehicle scrap.

—States should enact legislation to protect auto wreckers from legal action or harassment resulting from picking up or accepting motor vehicles presumed to be abandoned or disposed of by owners.

Top Dollar Paid

A person who has been forced to abandon his vehicle for next to nothing might receive a surprise to learn from the report that the average revenue obtained from a dismantled vehicle is about $327.

It is not unusual, the report states, for dealers to pay $500 to $1,000 for a late model junked vehicle with many salable parts, although the average price of all cars purchased for dismantling appears to be about $234.

Most of the wrecker's income is earned from selling parts rather than from selling the scrap metal, and facilities also are lacking for reducing the scrap to salable bales or shreds.

Acid-Killed Fish Foil Water Line

TOKYO (AP) — Tokyo's water system was cut off from one of its three main reservoirs today after experts determined that dead fish floating in a feeder river were killed by hydrocyanic acid.

Officials believe the acid, a weak chemical used against insects and rats, may have been discharged into the Tama River by textile or dying plants in the area.

Workmen poured neutralizing chemicals into the reservoir. Officials said it would be out of use for a few days and meanwhile the other two reservoirs had more than enough water for the city's 11 million people.

Lawmakers Rap Wayne U. Paper Over Cartoon

LANSING (AP) — Two state legislators have renewed their protests to Wayne State University officials about controversial materials printed in the school's campus newspaper, the South End.

In a letter to Dr. William R. Keast, university president, Rep. Marvin Stempien, D-Livonia, protests a drawing in the Oct. 24 issue of the South End, depicting the hindquarters of an animal wearing a police helmet.

Stempien said he and Rep. Joseph Swallow, R-Alpena, were concerned that the sketch was inappropriate. Swallow, who earlier this year suggested Wayne's State aid be slashed by the amount of the newspaper's operating budget, called the drawing "irresponsible, dribbling filth."

"This drawing is not only degrading to our law and its enforcement, but, in my opinion, it also represents the product of a vile, sick mind," Swallow said.

Stempien, in his letter to Keast, said he recommended earlier that the Wayne paper "be substantially changed in approach and substance if severe legislative budget cuts for publication of the paper were to be avoided." He asked Keast to reply.

Earthquake Area Presently Looks Like 'Tent City'

BANJA LUKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — This quake-devastated city beside the Vrbas River looked like a giant campsite today as thousands huddled beneath tents or around campfires in parks and empty lots.

Those who had not fled after the earthquakes Sunday and Monday stayed in the open, fearing more destructive earth shocks. Twenty were dead and hundreds were injured, but the toll from Monday's more destructive quake probably would have been much higher if the first quake Sunday had not driven many from their homes.

Police reported almost every building in the city of 65,000 people was destroyed or damaged.

Army units set up generators, partially restoring power and lighting some of the deserted streets which police and troops patrolled to prevent looting.

Rescue units sifted through the ruins of apartment houses in search of more victims.

Thousands left the city, and more were expected to find shelter today in nearby towns.

Both Sides Eye Synod Victory

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Both the liberals and the conservatives claim a measure of victory at the second Roman Catholic synod of bishops.

Liberals, such as Belgium's Leo Joseph Cardinal Suenens, pointed to the considerable new sharing in papal authority Pope Paul VI seems ready to concede to his church's bishops.

Conservatives, such as Jean Cardinal Danielou of France, cited the clear reaffirmation by all 146 delegates of the absolute primacy of the Pope, his right to make the major decisions for the Church.

Other synod members protested they could not understand this talk about "liberals vs. conservatives." They viewed the synod as a great uniting assembly molding Pope and bishops into a fraternal governing team. England's John Cardinal Heenan called the synod "a victory for common sense and tolerance."

In the formal closing session Monday, the Pope endorsed two key requests, that a synod meet every two years and that the synod's secretariat function permanently in Rome.

He also signaled broad acceptance of 11 other proposals from the bishops.

Peace, Order, Force, Violence Out Says Kelley

UNIVERSITY CENTER (AP) Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Tuesday universities must foster and encourage and permit dissent as an expression of free speech, but must oppose those who seek to impose their viewpoints through force and violence.

The attorney general spoke at dedication ceremonies at Saginaw Valley College at University Center, near Saginaw.

"Dissent is neither alien nor unwelcome," Kelley said. "It is natural, and there should be no more natural place for dissent than in a democracy, unless it be on a campus of a democracy."

In recent months, however, Kelley said, there have been examples of students "who seek to impose their viewpoints upon university communities through force and violence, and who refuse to give to others in that community the same right of freedom of speech and expressions of views as they so vehemently demand for themselves."

"This selfish and destructive tactic indicates a lack of understanding of the meaning of freedom of speech. Fortunately," Kelley added, "It is utilized only by a small minority of the students; but the noise they make and the scene they represent to the concerned public magnifies their impact completely out of proportion of their importance."

Kelley praised the present generation for "an unprecedented maturity of judgment, an unparralleled awareness of the problems of our time, and an unmatched concern for their fellow man."

"Certainly," he said, "they evidence a greater awareness of the world about them than we, their fathers and grandfathers, whose main collegiate concerns were the raccoon coat, swallowing goldfish and a bottle of hootch."

Cheerleading At White House Big Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of government employes turn out each year on taxpayer time to serve as White House cheering sections when the President welcomes foreign visitors or pins medals on war heroes.

This occurs on the average of once a month and means absences of about two hours each for 25 to 200 workers requested from each agency.

Last week, according to White House sources, about 5,000 passes were sent out to roundup a crowd to help President Nixon welcome the Shah of Iran.

Attendance is arranged through quotas passed out to the agencies—from the Agriculture Department to White House itself. Officials say participation is voluntary and builds morale of government workers.

The quotas vary according to the type of ceremony and security involved, and the red-carpet affair for the Shah was one of the largest.

No estimates on costs in man-hours lost from government desks were available, but agency officials said an average of two hours for each employee to go to the White House and return seemed reasonable.

A Civil Service Commission spokesman said the average pay of career government employees here is about $4.80 per hour. Thus it could cost an average of $9,600 in wages for each two-hour ceremony attended by 1,000 workers.

Rounding up federal employes for audiences is not new in Washington although the White House cheering section is recent. Officials say it began with President John F. Kennedy, expanded under President Lyndon B. Johnson and now has been adopted by Nixon.

Congress Told Hospital Costs To Hit $100 Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hospital care costs probably will rise to nearly $100 a day by 1973, Congress has been told.

A spokesman for the American Hospital Association, testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee, said the average daily cost of hospital care was $68.26 in 1969 and $87.89 for 1970. The Association's projection shows this will rise to $96.37 by 1973, he said.

The witness, Dr. George W. Graham, Schenectady, N.Y., president of the association, said the medicare program, as well as increasing salaries, generally higher costs and inflation all have added to the rise in hospital charges to patients.

The committee's hearings are on various proposals dealing with social security and welfare.

Peppy Pistons Lose To Bullets

DETROIT (AP) — Two old friends came back to haunt the Detroit Pistons Tuesday.

Former Detroiters Kevin Loughery and Ray Scott fired the Baltimore Bullets offense as the Bullets powered their way to a 125-110 National Basketball Association victory over a sloppy Pistons team.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston bombed Milwaukee 120-107, New York ran its record to 8-1 by swamping Atlanta 128-104 and Chicago edged Seattle 114-116.

It was the 10th time in 10 meetings that the Bullets have downed Detroit.

Loughery sank 14 field goals on 28 shots and added five free throws for 33 points. Scott scored 16.

"I've known Kevin—I've been in a basketball camp with him for about six years," said Pistons coach Bill van Breda Kolff, whose 47th birthday was marred by the loss. "He's a good player, but not that good."

Van Breda Kolff did receive a birthday present of sorts from referee Ken Hudson, who called a technical foul on the fiery coach after he protested an offensive goaltending call which nullified a Detroit basket in the fourth quarter.

The Pistons were hurt by turnovers and their inability to snare rebounds from inside. Their hooting also was spotty at best.

McCoy McLemore, a newcomer to the Detroit starting team, scored 21 points while veteran guard Dave Bing was high scorer with 24.

"We played terrific defense and stole a lot of balls," said Baltimore coach Gene Shue of his team's fourth victory in six outings. "We just outhustled them."

The loss left the Pistons with a 3-3 record.

The Celtics finally proved they could win without the retired Russell by bombing the Milwaukee Bucks 120-107 Tuesday night in Milwaukee.

It was Boston's first victory this season after four defeats and the Celtics did it despite Alcindor's 43 points for the Bucks while Russell's replacements at Center, Henry Finkel and Rich Niemann, managed only one point between them.

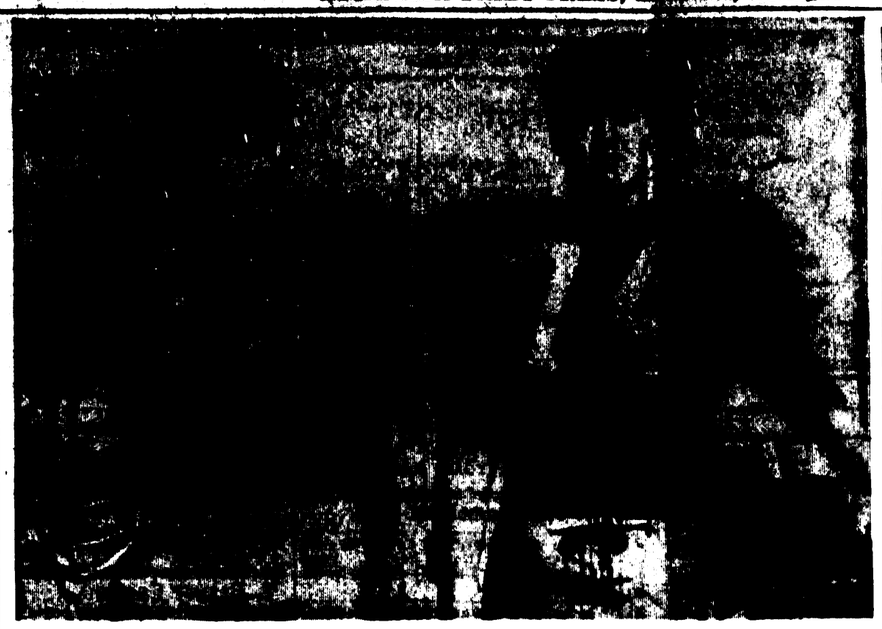
Alcindor, the 7-foot-2 rookie sensation, had 29 points by halftime and the Celtics led only 59-57, but the margin grew to 94-84 after three quarters and a 15-2 spurt buried the Bucks.

Willis Reed, hitting 18 of his 28 points, led the Knicks to a 62 per cent shooting percentage and a 66-55 halftime spread. It grew from there.

Clem Haskins scored three points in the last six seconds in Chicago's squeaker over Seattle. The Sonics overcame a 113-108 deficit with less than a minute to go and went ahead 114-113 with 13 seconds remaining.

Haskins connected on a field goal with six seconds left and was fouled when Seattle put the ball in play. He converted the second of two free throws for the last point.

Player-Coach Len Wilkens of the Sonics set a Seattle Coliseum record of 17 assists and topped all scorers with 26 points. Chet Walker was high for the Bulls with 25.



NORTHLAND COLLEGE gridders Mike Lagina, left, and Craig Johnson, both members of last year's Gladstone Brave football team, have made the switch from high school to college ball without much trouble. Mike broke into the starting lineup early in the season as an offensive guard and Craig has been a starter off and on throughout the season, both as an offensive tackle and as a defensive guard. Lagina is 5-9, 185 and Johnson is one of the biggest men on the team at 6-5, 235.

Nation's Top Team Not Going To Bowl

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 football team, isn't going to the Rose Bowl or any other bowl despite Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes' sentiments.

Hayes, a brilliant tactician on and off the football field, Tuesday said that in view this is college football's 100th anniversary "and the best team in the country should appear in a bowl game including us if we are the best team in the country. If not, we wouldn't deserve it."

Hayes made his remarks Tuesday in a telephone interview with the Chicago Football Writers. The bowl question popped after Hayes' Buckeyes had soared to their 19th straight victory with a 41-0 triumph over Illinois.

Illinois Coach Jim Valek said "I think it is a shame if a team like Ohio State goes undefeated and ends up No. 1 and then cannot play in some kind of a bowl game.

"I don't think they should go to the Rose Bowl, but I sure would like to see them give Tennessee or one of those teams a real thrill. Ohio State would show them a thing or two," said Valek.

Bill Reed, commissioner of the Big Ten, emphatically ruled out the possibility the conference would give approval to a team going to any other than the Rose Bowl which he called an "exceptional situation hinged on the Big Ten's no-repeat rule."

Ohio State apparently will be victimized by the no-repeat rule since the Buckeyes represented the conference last season and came off with a 27-16 victory over Southern California.

Hayes, however, feels the situation has changed since the original Rose Bowl pact which would not have been sanctioned without the no-repeat rule.

"The rule was a compromise and even the West Coast originally had the no-repeat clause," said Hayes. "But they changed their rule and that in itself has changed the entire situation."

Some feel the champion should represent the conference and others, like Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian, whose school bans post season bowl games, feel the No. 1 team in the nation should be in a bowl.

"I don't know if the 100th anniversary of football should have anything to do with it," said Parseghian. "But I think the No. 1 team in the country should participate in a bowl game and play against the strongest team of another section."

CLASSIFIED ADS COST LITTLE BUT DO A BIG JOB

Big Ten Coaches Attack Officials

CHICAGO (AP)—Four coaches have violated a gentlemen's agreement this season and publicly criticized football officiating in the Big Ten.

This is the biggest package of beefs ever aired in one season since the agreement was established 10 years ago "in the interests of better officiating based on the premise that nothing is solved by public discussion of it."

The violators are rookie Big Ten coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan, Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, Jim Valek of Illinois and Ray Nagel of Iowa.

Valek and Nagel leveled charges in the last several weeks.

Daugherty did it after the Spartans' 19-18 loss to Iowa Saturday.

Schembechler got in the act in a telephone conversation at the Chicago football writers meeting Tuesday.

Daugherty said an official made an "unforgivable" error by ruling that an ineligible receiver, tackle Dave Van Elst, was downfield when Bill Triplett threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to Steve Kough. The play was nullified.

Schembechler said:

"Officiating has not been very good, in my opinion. They call penalties that are not penalties. They call penalties that should not be called. Officiating could be improved upon greatly.

"Perhaps some officials are not good enough to be in there. But I'm not putting blame on them for any losses."

Commissioner Bill Reed in the last 10 years has passed out only two reprimands for public criticism. They went to Coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue in a 1965 outburst and to Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State last year.

Reed would not confirm that reprimands have been given this season to Valek, Nagel and Daugherty.

"Let's just say we have been in touch with them and leave it at that," he said. "As for Schembechler's remarks Tuesday, I don't think they were necessary, in order or justified."

Hayes, whose No. 1 ranked Buckeyes have a 19-game winning streak, can find nothing to beef about.

"But it is obvious from a study of ours and opponents' films that officials are cracking down on infractions and calling them closer," he told the writers by phone. "And this changes coaches' plans.

"This season we had a clipping infraction called against us and I chewed out the official about it. But in viewing the films, I saw that he was absolutely right. I'm thinking of writing a letter about it."

Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame said that "we've had good and bad calls this season but after coaching 20 years you become realistic about it."

Reed said that "I've never known of a year when officiating was not controversial."

"After the season's first few games our conclusion was that there was some raggedness in officiating," he added, "but basically the mechanics of officiating are working well and that is a basis for good judgment.

Dickey Receives Top Back Honors

By The Associated Press

When Lynn Dickey, Kansas State's junior quarterback, goes to the movies, it's usually a double feature—one good film and one bad one.

The good one shows Dickey's hero, Joe Namath of the New York Jets, in action. The bad one is "sort of a horror film" consisting of the 19 interceptions Dickey threw last season.

Of his performance in K-State's shocking 30-21 slaughter of Oklahoma last Saturday, Namath should be watching films of Dickey. He might even recognize the white shoes.

All the 6-foot-4, 204-pounder from Osawatomie, Kan., did was set Big Eight records with 28 completions for 360 yards as the Wildcats beat Oklahoma for the first time in 36 years. Included in the barrage were three touchdown passes.

For that performance, Dickey was named college football's Back of the Week by The Associated Press.

"There isn't a better quarterback in the country than Lynn Dickey," said Coach Vince Gibson. "Dickey is a super, super, super, super quarterback. He's a great passer, he's got a lot of poise, he doesn't panic and he's great at picking up his second receiver. He's definitely a pro prospect.

"He played the best game at quarterback I've seen since I've been coaching. I recall seeing Dewey Warren, Chuck Hixson, Bobby Douglass, Bob Anderson and Terry Hanratty.

"I've never seen a college quarterback do that well. I remember Warren had a great day for Tennessee against UCLA when I was coaching at Tennessee, but it didn't compare with what Dickey did in this game. I've never seen a quarterback do that to a good football team like Oklahoma."

Maybe Dickey didn't see Namath do it to the Baltimore Colts last January, but you can bet Dickey did. He not only wears white shoes like Broadway Joe, but Osawatomie Lynn has pictures of Namath all over his room and tries to get films of him whenever he can.

"I watch his every move," Dickey said. "I've followed him since he's been in pro ball. I watch his technique more than anything else, the way he sets up, but I even watch the way he walks. I think he's the greatest quarterback around."

The white shoes started when Dickey and teammate John Stucky made a speaking tour of the state last summer promoting Kansas State football before civic and alumni groups. At one function, Dickey was jokingly asked when he was going to start wearing white shoes.

He mentioned it to Gibson, who told him: "If you've got the guts to wear 'em, wear 'em."

In winning Back of the Week honors, Dickey beat out:

—John Reaves, Florida quarterback, who tied a Southeastern Conference record with five touchdown passes in a 41-20 victory over Vanderbilt.

—Bill Taylor, Michigan halfback, gained 151 yards and scored three times as the Wolverines trounced Minnesota 35-9.

—Tony Passander, Citadel quarterback, scored four touchdowns and passed for the winner in a 34-28 triumph over Davidson.

—Mike Phipps, Purdue quarterback, set school total offense and pass yardage records in a 45-20 rout of Northwestern.

—Neil Graff, Wisconsin quarterback, threw four scoring passes in a 28-24 upset of Indiana.

—Jim Strong, Houston halfback, gained 212 yards as the Cougars downed Mississippi 25-21.

Gadsby Remains With Red Wings

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League announced Tuesday that their recently fired coach Bill Gadsby will remain with the organization as director of professional scouting.

The 42-year-old veteran defenseman of 20 NHL seasons, who coached Detroit to a fifth place finish last year, was fired by Wings owner Bruce Norris an hour before Detroit's 3-2 loss to the Minnesota North Stars in the third game of the season.

Gadsby has remained on the payroll since his firing and will assume his new duties immediately. His first assignment will be to scout the Pittsburgh Penguins, Detroit's opponent at Olympia Stadium Sunday.

Ishpeming Wins In Cross Country

MARQUETTE — Ishpeming won the annual U. P. cross country meet held here Saturday, collecting 47 points to finish ahead of runnerup Menominee, which had 78 points.

Calumet finished third with 107 points followed by Holy Name 123, Escanaba 127, Gladstone 152, Soo 174, Marquette 215, Ironwood 239, Negaunee 254, Newberry 263 and Kingsford 298.

Paul Williams of Newberry took top individual honors with a time of 10:39.

Paul Guenette of Holy Name led all local runners, coming in seventh, while Steve Gage of Escanaba led the Escanaba runners in eighth place and Jeff Schram placed 11th for Gladstone.

Also running in the meet were Brian Tanguay, Greg Gerou, Don DeGrand, Steve Kleiman, Bill St. Martin and Ted Bash of Holy Name and Bob Stone, Marty Anderson, Allan Larson, Fred Jurmu, Dale Ford and Larry Burkhardt of Escanaba.

Teachers Told Reform Won't KO Bargaining

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)— Education reform will not end bargaining between teachers and local school districts, only shift it to a higher, possibly state level, Gov. William G. Milliken said today.

"If my proposals are adopted, you are not going to see the end of bargaining—far from it," Milliken said in a speech prepared for delivery to Michigan Association of Elementary School Principals "Bargaining on most issues will continue as usual."

Salary negotiations, he said would "tend to move to the regional or even the state level."

The governor gave no prediction of what impact such broader negotiating might have on autumnal school openings, but he predicted, "Teachers will have an additional incentive to remain in the cities or rural areas instead of migrating to the wealthier suburbs."

Speaking less than 24 hours after a Republican-dominated Senate Education Committee that refused to recommend four of his key reform bills, Milliken stressed the benefits to local districts of his plan. His prepared remarks contained no reference to the Senate committee's unexpected action.

Greater state education responsibility, Milliken said, would mean "the federal government will have less cause to inject its own enormous power, and I might add, its enormous bureaucracy between the state and local districts.

Replying to criticism that his plan would usurp local control, Milliken said "many barriers prevent genuine local control from existing."

Where districts have too few students, too little tax base or outmoded assessment, "local control takes on an ironic meaning: Control of severely limited opportunities and restricted choices," he said.

Rather, Milliken contended, "local control should be directed to the type of instruction provided, the selection of teachers and administrators, and to other factors that will improve what actually goes on in the classroom."

Time-ly Question Comes Up Again?

LANSING (AP) — The Democratic State Senator who led an unsuccessful fight to put Michigan on Daylight Savings Time is ready to try again.

Sen. Raymond Dzendzel, D-Detroit, Tuesday introduced a resolution calling for a vote of the people on the question of Daylight Savings Time vs. Eastern Standard Time year around.

Dzendzel's measure was sent to the Senate Business Committee for study.

Michigan voters went to the ballot once and exempted the the state from provisions of the Federal Uniform Time Act, which provided that all states would observe Daylight Savings time unless otherwise provided by law.

Dzendzel says he believes many who voted against savings time previously have changed their mind and that the measure could win popular approval if another count were taken.

He proposes putting the issue on the ballot at the next general or special election.

Trick, Treat Rules Listed By PTA Council

The Escanaba Area PTA Council met Monday at the new Jefferson School and the following trick or treat rules were adopted:

- Trick or treating shall be limited to one night only from 5 to 7 p. m. on Friday, Oct. 31.
- Trick or treating should be limited to children in the elementary grades only.
- Children should stay in groups and small children should be accompanied by an adult.
- Children should limit their trick or treating activities to their own neighborhood.
- It is suggested that persons wishing to contribute to trick or treaters so signify by leaving their porch light on or by placing a sign in the window.
- Halloween carnivals in the elementary schools are to begin at 7 p. m., directly following the trick or treat time.
- The Council urges all drivers to be especially careful on Oct. 31 and to watch for children out on this special occasion.

Co-chairmen for the Founder's Day program outlined their plans for the evening of Feb. 21, 1970. Activities of the PTA organization will be presented in a musical skit in which children from the music departments will present orchestral and choral selections. They will be joined by members of the local Barbershoppers and the Jeanette LeCaptain dancers.

Mrs. Joy Kuivinen was named chairman of a safety committee which will investigate the, "Red Mitten," safety program that was so successful in the Franklin School area last year. When plans are complete, the program will be available in any school area that needs this type of care and protection.

Mrs. John Anthony announced that American Education Week will be observed Nov. 9-15.

Ask More Rigid Air Pollution Plans For Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to set more rigid air pollution standards for motor vehicles purchased by the federal government has been introduced in the House and Senate.

The bill would establish a board to certify engines meeting the low-emission standards. Steam and electric engines would be included.

Any vehicle certified would be eligible for purchase of its procurement and maintenance costs are no more than 25 per cent higher than a conventional vehicle for which it would substitute.

The bill was sponsored in the Senate by Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee and in the House by Rep. Thomas M. Foley, D-Wash., and 40 co-sponsors.

Magnuson blamed automobiles for at least 60 per cent of the total air pollution problem.

Emission control devices used by the auto makers since 1968 may bring a reduction in emissions by 1980, he said, but the total will then climb again.

Sugar Problem Not So Sweet For Castroites

MIAMI (AP) — Fidel Castro says Christmas in Cuba this year is officially postponed until next July because the sugar crop has first call on the national energies.

Castro gave his countrymen the bad news in a broadcast speech in Havana Monday night.

Sugar is Cuba's major source of foreign exchange to pay for imports, and Castro has vowed that the new harvest will reach the 10 million-ton mark, more than double the 1969 yield.

The prime minister spoke at a ceremony officially beginning the 1970 harvest.

The United States created its first national forests in 1891.

Today's Secret Ways For Crushing Slow

By Sid Boyum

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The wearing of boots is popular today with both young men and young women, and probably this reflects a feeling of frustration about our present society common to both sexes. They seek peace of mind, but the boots symbolize their unconscious, aggressive desire to stomp on whatever is bothering them and crush it.

Everything Costly

Everything costs twice as much or more than it used to, but the inflationary spiral won't really reach its peak until men start tipping hatcheck girls four bits instead of a quarter.

Many people now are turning to painting as a way to express themselves. This is a fine idea, but the trouble with encouraging them by praising one of their paintings is that they are likely to press it on you as a gift. This means that, whenever they visit you, it is necessary for you to run down to the basement or scurry up to the attic to find where you hid it, then dust it off, and hang it on the living room wall until they leave. That is simply too much to ask in the name of art.

Nothing Impossible

Nothing is impossible to a man who has the character to eat eight prunes for breakfast every morning of his life not because he likes them but because someone in his youth once told him they were good for him.

How much more romantic the world might seem if the same fine creative musical talent that is expended on television commercials was spent in composing our love songs!

Two out of five Americans don't know whether rutabaga is a musical instrument, a vegetable, or a kind of knapsack, and if you do tell these two what it is, one of them will think you're a small flower to replace up the dessert menu.

Fancy Sleeping Bags

Some fathers now are letting their children grow so long they must order their clothes and form a committee. It does give them an interesting look—sort of as if their shoes were shipping rops.

An old-timer is a man who can remember when all electric lights were turned on by pulling a knotted brass chain.

Wives complain as they get older that it becomes harder and harder for them to get their husbands' attention. Science finally has come up with the reason: any steady noise of 100 decibels or over can in time cause loss of hearing in a man.

Slang Nothing New

Every generation creates its own slang that flowers and fades. An example is masuma, an old-time slang term for money. If you mentioned masuma to a modern teen-ager, he probably would think you were talking about an obscure Egyptian belly dancer.

Happy is the heart that uses its rainy days to remember unforgotten rainbows.

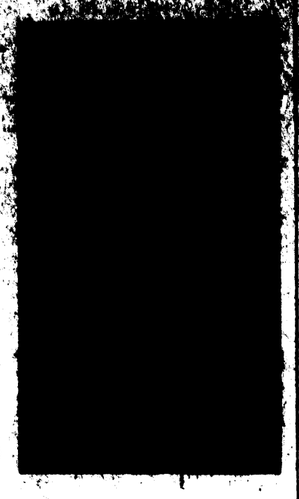
Miss Beth Tobin and friend Dale Hattan of Marquette spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Margie Tobin in Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Boudreau and daughter Nancy of Alpena and Mrs. Rita Maynard of Lansing were weekend visitors at the Roland Boudreau and James Dotsch homes.



HANK SHORR, 17, a June graduate of North Farmington High School, has been identified as the youth who hijacked a plane to Cuba this week. The Pan American Airways jetliner with 36 persons aboard, was enroute from Mexico City to Miami when hijacked. Farmington is a Detroit suburb. (AP Wirephoto)
